

Innoxy executive and leadership coaching - sample some coaching time

Innovate and experiment with some coaching time to think - experiment, explore and exploit

Innovate through coaching

Give it a go remotely

For executives and leaders who would like to experiment with some coaching time to think remotely.

Some time to explore possibilities, the opportunity to think through your thoughts and experiment with your own thinking. This is some coaching time creating the conditions for effective decision making.

Experience coaching time with the time to think ethos and put together your newest thinking as we move through Spring into Summer. Experiment, explore and exploit your thinking to formulate your current goals for 2016 or simply take time to think about the next step you want to take in your work right now - time to explore and exploit.

Realise the potential of some coaching time to think through your own thoughts and take this opportunity to sample a session remotely over the phone or via video-call, 30 minutes or thereabouts to think with an experienced coach.

Experience the time to think your thoughts through with the presence of a coach. This is an opportunity to develop and see if the remote coaching partnership works for you. Remote coaching can add focus to coaching time whilst providing ease for good decision making. As it's over the phone or Skype (or other video-call) it's flexible and works around other business commitments.

The opportunity to sample Innoxy remote executive coaching time is between now and the middle of June 2016.

Realise the power and potential of your creative mind and explore and exploit new futures.

To arrange and try out a remote executive coaching session, or to ask any questions you may have about this opportunity please contact Kristina.

Executive Coach: Kristina Crabbe

Innoxy coaching works in partnership with leaders to help them meet their personal and organisational goals. Innoxy supports executives through change and transition linking passion and purpose.

To do this we use a range of useful advanced coaching skills and knowledge, working flexibly with clients' time and around their business needs. We appreciate just how much, the time for coaching and the right coaching relationship can make a profound difference, igniting and realising individual and organisational goals for commercial success. What makes us different is our real and practical approach to work through big picture issues.

We offer people in leadership positions the opportunity to discuss and develop openly and honestly any number of issues, thoughts, opinions and feelings within a safe and reflective space. An opportunity too to re-energise.

Innoxy team, group and organisational coaching takes the benefits of coaching on a step further in your organisation and works by supporting and shaping organisational change using integrated coaching approaches. Innoxy's consultancy focus is the design, development and implementation of organisational practices and procedures and the internal coaching and mentoring capability.